General Tang Gang-Xi joined the Central Military Academy in the late 1930s to fulfill the "100,000 youth 100,000 soldiers" movement. After graduating in the 19th class, he was assigned to the Artillery Troop, and engaged in anti-Japan invasion war in Yun-Nan Province. He became an Army military attaché for Chinese Embassy at Tokyo after WWII. Later he served as a liaison officer for the Republic of China in Taiwan to hire former Japanese officers as military trainers and advisor known as "Bai-bing-tuan" (White Military Advisor Group).
